Investment Objective

Seeks long-term capital appreciation through investment in an actively managed portfolio of equity and equity-related securities issued by large, mid and small capitalisation companies located predominantly in the U.S. with limited exposure to issuers in Canada.

Investment Approach

- Invests in a broad set of equity and equity-related securities across all market capitalisations located predominantly in the U.S. with limited exposure to issuers in Canada and seeks to increase expected returns by overweighting securities we believe to be trading at lower valuations and with higher profitability ratios.
- Pursues the benefits associated with indexing (diversification, low turnover, transparency of exposures), but with the ability to add value by making investment decisions using information in current prices.
- Efficient portfolio management and trading processes are designed to reduce unnecessary risks and costs while seeking to enhance returns.

DUE TO MARKET VOLATILITY, CURRENT PERFORMANCE MAY BE DIFFERENT THAN THE FIGURES SHOWN.

Avantis America Equity UCITS ETF (the 'Fund') is an actively managed Exchange Traded Fund (ETF) that does not seek to replicate the performance of a specified index. To determine whether to buy or sell a security, the portfolio managers consider, among other things, various fund requirements and standards, along with economic conditions, alternative investments, interest rates and various credit metrics. If the portfolio manager considerations are inaccurate or misapplied, the fund's performance may suffer.

The value of the Shares and any income from ETFs may fall or rise and investors may not get back the amount invested.

Past performance does not predict future returns. This material is not intended to be relied upon as a forecast, research or investment advice, and is not a recommendation, offer or solicitation to buy or sell any financial instrument or product or to adopt any investment strategy. Future performance is subject to taxation which depends on the personal situation of each investor and which may change in the future.

Key Terms: Expected Returns: Valuation theory shows that the expected return of a stock is a function of its current price, its book equity (assets minus liabilities) and expected future profits, and that the expected return of a bond is a function of its current yield and its expected capital appreciation (depreciation). We use information in current market prices and company financials to identify differences in expected returns among securities, seeking to overweight securities with higher expected returns based on this current market information. Actual returns may be different than expected returns, and there is no guarantee that the strategy will be successful. Weighted Average Market Capitalization: The average of the weighted capitalizations of a portfolio's holdings. Weighted Average Book/Market: An average book-to-market ratio resulting from the multiplication of each security's book-to-market by its weight in the portfolio. Weighted Average Profits/Book: An average profits-to-book ratio resulting from the multiplication of each security's profits-to-book by its weight in the portfolio. ITD: Inception to date.

The Russell 3000® Index measures the performance of the 3,000 largest U.S. companies based on total market capitalization, which represents approximately 98% of the investable U.S. equity market. Created by Frank Russell Company, it is not an investment product available for purchase.

Investment Risk Information: There can be no assurance that each Fund will achieve its investment objective. The value of Shares and the income therefrom may rise or fall as the capital values of a Fund's investments fluctuate. The investment income of a Fund is based on the income earned on the securities it holds, less expenses incurred. Therefore, a Fund's investment income may be expected to fluctuate in response to changes in such income or expenses. The value of equity securities, may fluctuate due to changes in investor perception of a specific issuer, changes in the general condition of the stock market, or occurrences of political or economic events that affect equity issuers and the market. Historically, small- and mid-cap stocks have been more volatile than the stock of larger, more-established companies. Smaller companies may have limited resources, product lines and markets, and their securities may trade less frequently and in more limited volumes than the securities of larger companies. International investing involves special risks, such as political instability and currency fluctuations. Investing in emerging markets may accentuate these risks. The use of derivative instruments involves risks different from, or possibly greater than, the risks associated with investing directly in securities and other traditional instruments. Derivatives can be highly illiquid and difficult to unwind or value, and changes in the value of a derivative held by the fund may not correlate with the value of the underlying instrument. Derivatives are subject to a number of other risks, including interest, market and credit risk. The information is not intended as a personalized recommendation or fiduciary advice and should not be relied upon for investment, accounting, legal or tax advice. For full information on the risks, please refer to the relevant sections of the Prospectus and KIID/KID.
